

Dave Parsell is co-founder of Localintel, an award-winning technology startup making it easier for municipalities to promote their strengths, share market intelligence and support local business growth. His professional background includes senior roles in local government and consulting where he specialized in economic development and urban planning. Dave's career also includes roles with Deutsche Bank, Standard Chartered Bank and the Australian Army.